

Research and Communications Intern

---

The Livelihoods India Initiative is looking for versatile and handy Research and Communications interns to multi-task and deliver short assignments. These assignments will vary in terms of the final shape/product but are connected to livelihood promotion work in India (and the South Asian region).

Deliverables:

- Documentation, analysis and presentation of findings for FPO rating tool for a medium to large data set
- Comprehensive list of Universities, Departments and Schools relating to social work, livelihoods promotion, policy and advocacy, agriculture, social sciences etc (for example Dpt of Social Work/Policy Studies/Development/Development Studies/Sociology/Political Sc/Agri Studies/Gender Studies)– NCR, pan India and South Asia region
- Comprehensive list of CSOs relating to social work, livelihoods promotion, policy and advocacy, agriculture, FPOs, social sciences etc- NCR, pan India and South Asia region
- Campaign strategy for targeting students and CSOs to register for Livelihoods India Summit 2022 through use on SM and other online as well as offline tools
- Composing blog pieces for media articles and outreach on issues related to livelihoods

Required Qualifications:

- Pursuing a Masters degree in agriculture sciences, mass communication, social sciences, communications or related program
- Well acquainted with Microsoft excel tools
- Outgoing, energetic and eager to learn
- Assertive, proactive and able to work independently on assignments

Hours and weekdays can be determined with students. Individuals will need to have their own computer and internet. The internship will be remote and for 3 months. Renumeration will be based on the overall assigned tasks and experience.

Please take a moment to see our work on our website www.livelihoods-india.org
In case the work interests you, send your CV to parul@accessdev.org